THE FIRST DAY OF THE TROT.

The Nebraska Trotting Association's Races and Sales Begin.

FINE PROGRAMME FOR TO-DAY.

The Last of the Topeka Games-The Wichitas Coming To-Morrow-Races Elsewhere-Other Sport.

The First Day's Trotting. The two days' racing meet of the Nebraska association of trotting horse breaders began yesterday afternoon at the fair grounds under very favorable auspices. The attendance, however, was only fair, the intense heat without a doubt being responsible for this, as much interest is being manifested in the prosperity and success of the association by horse breeders all over the state, and the Indications are that this afternoon will witness several thousand spectators upon the

The association was organized two years ago last January, the moving spirits in the enterprise embracing such well known men as Judge M. L. Hayward, of Nebraska City; D. T. Hill, of Syracuse; J. D. McFarland, of Lincoln; D. D. Johnson, Cheyenne county, J. O. France, Seward, W. H. Barstow, Crete, Henry Fry, York, and D. T. Mount, C. H. Creighton, A. J. Poppleton and the Patricks, of Omaha. The present roster of office rs are Judge Hayward, president; D. T. Hill, secretary, and D. D. Johnson, treasurer. The one and sole effort of the organization is to improve the driving horses of Nebraska, and any man residing within the limits of the state, with proper credentials, is privileged to join. The membership now numbers something over 300, and is rapidly growing. In a few years it will be one or the strongest associations The association was organized two years 200, and is rapidly growing. In a few years it will be one of the strongest associations of the kind in the United States, as the character of the men composing it is of a class whose enterprise and determination will not allow it to long remain second to any. Already it far surpasses the similar association of lows, having twice the number of members and three times the number of horses. Night before last about thirty new members were enrolled and last night as many more, including Congressman McShane and J. D. Creighton.

The sales advertised to come off yesterday morning failed to materialize, owing to the light attendance, but will positively take place this morning. There are forty-ive head hery to be sold, among which are some good ones, and as they will positively be disposed of to the highest bidder, the opportunity will certainly be an unexampled one to secure fine brood mares and matured trotters at a sacrince.

Another Chestnut Ball Game. The game of ball at the park yesterday afternoon, although a one-sided affair, was very interesting. There were numerous close decisions, and as a consequence much fault found with the umpire. These, however, are little things and utterly ignored by the Topekas when pitted against the Omahas. There will be no game until Friday, when the Wichitas are the visitors. Following is vesterday's-

In the meantime Tom Bowen is at his home in Del Norte, Col., 285 miles away from Denver, and Senator Teller is living up in the mountains at the mining town of Central City. Teller has a law office in Deaver, and also a big ranch near Pueblo, Bowen's interests are in mines, and he once told me that a man never got wealthy selling postage stamps, and that if he wanted to make a fortune he must strike for big game. It was in this way that Bowen has made what he has, and he is said to be wealthy. He rode here from Arkansas a poor man and for seven years worked a group of claims in company with others in a corporation known as the San Juan Mining company. It is said the company was badly managed, and its stock got down very low. Bowen saw that there was money in its mines, and in 1881 its shares were played for at and in 1881 its shares were played for at poker in Del Norte at the rate of two drinks a share. Bowen quietly bought them up, getting, it is said, $300,000 worth of stock for $75. He soon got control of the stock. He pushed the work, soon struck a rich lead, and thus made a fortune. He paid his debts, and I am told he is interested in the stamp mill which has since been erected near mill which has since been erected near

WING GET HAS TAKEN FLIGHT

The Curious and Amusing Funeral of an Omaha Chinaman.

AN UNKNOWN'S VIOLENT FATE.

A Supposed Tramp's Horrible Death On the Railway Track-A New Inquest Over Georgiana Clark-Other Local.

A Chinese Faneral. Omaha has never seen a funeral like the one that occured yesterday just when the storm king and the sinking sun were disputing in the heavens for a mastery. It was a quiet procession in which Wing Get, a Chinaman, occupied the first carriage. Wing had taken wings to the ethereal atmosphere, and as Doctor Ralph had given a mortuary certificate, it is probable he got there. Wing was a laundry man and worked for Wah Lee at No. 1013 Harney street. On Monday last he became sick and was removed to the Child's hospital. There he remained until death gave him ticket of leave. He was fifty-three years of age and left a widow and two children, now residing in Rock Springs, Wyo. Thither his remains were sent last night in a metallic casket costing $150. In the days to come Wing's osseous remains will probably sail the seas over for a final resting place in China.

The funeral of Wing Get was a solemn one. Burket, the undertaker, lead the procession, four carriages containing orientals followed. At the depot the following pall bearers lifted the remains from the hearse: Wah Lee, Song Gay, Wing Lee, Ah Lee, San Gong and Ah Fe.

Riding on the hearse was Ge Knung Tong, the high priest of the Masonic order of Chinamen in the Masonic order of Chinamen in the west. This high official distributed small pieces of perforated paper along the route for the purpose of "keeping the devil away," for while "he" would be picking them up, the remains of Wong Get would be gaining ground in the chase. There was no ceremony at the depot. Wong Get expired Tuesday evening. Mrs. Moore, matron of the hospital, says that he was conscious up to near the time of dissolution. She hospital, says that he was conscious up to near the time of dissolution. She called Rev. John Williams to his bedside. In the meantime the "China hoys" brought in their "priest," who opened by shaking his fist in the face of the dying man three times. This was because Wong Get had been a renegade to his religion in having his queue cut off. Then the remains were removed to H. L. Burkett's undertaking establishment on Sixteenth street, and there the Chinese wake commenced. First the deceased was wrapped in a red blanket.
Then fifty-three little rockets were fired off in significance of the years of Wong's life. Afterwards one of the most ludicrous all-round dances over seen in these crous all-round dances over seen in these parts was indulged in by the "China boys." The red blanket was then taken off and the mourners adjourned.

Early yesterday morning the friends of the deceased were on hand in force. They planked down $150 for the casket but insisted on a contribution of 25 cents to pay Wing's ferriage "across the Styx." A roast chicken was then produced and disentrailed. Fifty-three portions of the fowl were taken out three portions of the fowl were taken out and burned. Then the all around busi-ness commenced again. Some black and white cloth was torn into strips. The high priest put a fragment on his hat and the others followed suit, while the body was being removed to the hearse. Fifty-three candles were kept burning as the procession moved out, and it required the efforts of a stalwart policeman to keep the curious away from the car-where he conducted a laundry. His decease is regretted among his nationality here but its effect on the city is not noticeable. One incident should be mentioned, however, and that is in regard to the Chinese foresight. A bottle of whisky safely wrapped up in an old cloth was placed in Wing Get's coffin, so that in ease there would be a switch-off to Iowa even the dead man might have a

GROUND TO ATOMS.

An Inbound U. P. Train Kills an Unknown Man Last Night. The regular freight train on the Union Pacific, driven by Engineer Martin Cushing in engine No. 53, and due here at 10 o'clock last night, ran down and killed an unknown man just west of the city. The first intimation of the accident was obtained in the discovery by the crew in the caboose of blood on the wheels. The train was halted and slowly run back over a trail of blood and shreds of clothing until it terminated in the body of a man who had been literally cut to pieces and was wholly unrecognizable. The trainmen hastily gathered the greater portion of the remains into a basket, and on reaching the city the fragments were turned over to the coroner. There is no clew whatever to the identity of the unfortunate man but one of the theories is that he was a tramp stealing a ride. There were ninety-six cars on the train, and it supposed that nearly all of these passed over him.

ANOTHER INQUEST.

Coroner Drexel to Reconvene the Georgiana Clark Jury.

Coroner Drexel, aroused by the results of the misguidance he suffered through the police, has determined to learn the fate of Georgiana Clark, the colored woman who died in jail Tuesday morning, if it requires a week of effort. He keenly feels the reproach which, through no fault of his, attaches to the conduct of the case, and will spare no means of learning the truth. To that end he will reconvene the jury this morning, providing substitutes, however, for the "ily cop" and another "connection" of the police who figured on the original panel, and will view the body just before the funeral which occurs at 10 o'clock. The inquest proper will begin at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and if preserve will be continued form. and if necessary will be continued from day to day until the last possible source of information is exhausted.

All kinds of rumors are rife about the matter, the very latest one being that the woman was subject to frequent beatings and thumpings at the hands of her man and keeper, John W. Fielding. It is said that last Saturday he gave her an un-merciful drubbing, which may after all account for her wounds and bruises.

An autopsy was held yesterday, but the physicians withhold the announcement of their judgment until called upon

WYOMING'S CRIMINALS.

The Territory Seeking a Prison For Its Malfactors. Among the arrivals at the Millard yesterday were Colonel Luke Murrin, the big, full-faced, good-natured penitentiary commissioner of Wyoming, Judge Maginnis of the same, and R. C. Morris, the tomers to the penitentiary long enough to enable them to turn their hair white and improve their morals. The judge is a young man and bears his judicial honors with becoming ease and modesty. Colonel Murrin says that the territory of Colonel Murrin says that the territory of Wyoming is now compelled to keep its convicts at home. Until a short time ago it used to send them to Joliet, Ill., where they were supported without expense. Last spring the state estopped the penitentiary from receiving any more convicts for laboring purposes, and as a consequence Wyoming was compelled to look elsewhere to shelter her outlaws. Mr. Murrin went to Lincoln where he was also declined admission for his criminals. This compelled him to keep his convicts at home, and as a consequence the outlaws have been apportioned among the several county jails in the territory. The territory is now represented ritory. The territory is now represented in Lincoln by five convicts, mostly stage robbers, seventy-one in Joliet, some of whom are murderers, while in the county jails mentioned, there have been since the new order of things twenty-two toughs confined. Colonel Murrin and party will leave for home to-morrow. They have traveled about eleven hundred miles to attend the court they have just returned from, notwithstanding they are feeling in excellent condition.

Funeral of Edmund Lane. The funeral of Edmund Lane, of the Omaha Neb., calvary commandry of Knights Templar, took place yesterday afternoon. The cortege arrived at Masonic temple shortly after 4 o'clock, where the impressive services of the Masonic order were held, conducted by Canon Paterson, Among the floral tributes which were many and beautiful, particularly noticeable were the "Gates Ajar," surmounted by a dove with ex-tended wings, the gift of the engineer de-partment of the Union Pacific in which the deceased served for the past seven teen years, and flowery star, presented by the Eastern Star lodge of which he was a member. After private ceremonies symbolizing the mysteries of death according to the Masonic ritual, in an anteroom, public services were held in the large hall.

The remains were then borne to Prospect Hill cometery where the interment took place. The various orders of which the deceased was a member, the Knights Templar mounted in full dress uniform. formed a procession at the temple and headed by the Union Pacific brass band escorted the funeral to the cemetery.
The guards of honor were Sirs William

Wing Get was very popular among Chinamen here. He came here from Norfolk, Nebraska, a short time ago Bluffs is adequate for the work required of it. Because, of this doubt it has been thought advisable to supply a more reli-able and expeditious method of reaching the lake and the plan now under discussion is a broad guage track leading from the Union Pacific transfer through the Union Pacific territory at that point and thence along two of the streets in and thence along two of the streets in the southwestern part of the city to the resort. Mr. Day, of the Bluffs, who is contemplating building the road, came to Omaha yesterday for the purpose of asking about the right of way through the Union Pacific grounds mentioned, and at the same time outlined his intention to the Union Pacific officials. The description of the property of the latter will be looked up with respect to this matter. looked up with respect to this matter, when another meeting will be held. If such a line were established, it would enable the switching of whole loads of ex-cursionists from this side, who would thus be able to save a great deal of time.

Besides the broad guage would make better time under all circumstances. The rumor circulated some time ago that W. H. Burns, general agent at the Bluffs, had been asked to resign, seems to have been without foundation, because yesterday his jurisdiction was extended to include all employes at the Broadway and transfer stations, as also to all employes in the transportation department

QUEEN VIC HELD UP.

Buffalo Bill Makes Her Throw Up Her Hands and Sign Young Sanger's New York Journal: No. 1,223, alias Mutual District Messenger Sanger, is having all sorts of thrilling adventures in London. He is theboy who was sent over to deliver souvenirs of "The Highest Bidder" to eminent professionals like Buffalo Bill and Henry

The British government was highly wroth at the audaeity of this young Yankee in stealing $25 out of the British treasury. For that's what his expidition meant. He was to deliver 500 missives each of which should have had a fivecent stamp on it.

Such a diminution of the government's prospective revenue could not be tolerated, more especially as a deficit with visions of Lord Randolph sneering and jibing, stared the most noble Marquis of Salisbury in the face. So when 1,222 appeared in his natty blue uniform running about the London lanes he was promptly gathered into Bow street. The cable was soon bur-dened with messages. Everybody who had influence was implored to exert it on Sanger's benaif. A prominent lobbyist posted to Washington and poured the boy's tale of woe into the president's ear. Grover said it was too bad and promised to open a diplomatic correspondence on the youngster's behalf. He declined, however, to declare instant war upon

Her Britannic Majesty.

Not wishing Sanger to languish in a British dungeon till his hair became gray or paralysis attackek his legs, as in Bidwell's case, his employers cabled a pathetic appeal to the Hon. William Cody.
He quickly had the Deadwook coach inspanned and with a cowboy escort dashed away to Windsor.

vulsions by the hero's dread presence and, fulling at his feet, implored mercy. Not delaying longer than was necessary, the gallant William strode into Victoria's boudoir and ordered her majesty to throw up her hands. 'Sanger must be freed at once," declared the Monarch of the Prairie. The queen consented and he allowed her to take down her right hand long enough to sign a free pardon. Then he turned on his heel and was soon flying to the Bow street dungeon.

Great was 1,222's joy when once more he was allowed to behold the glorious sunshine (the fog lifted long enough to give him one peep) and he overwhelmed the modest Bull with his gratitude. The rest of the day was spent in delivering the souvenirs from the Deadwood coach.

Toombstone Above It Would Have Suited Him to a Dot. The While Buffalo Bill is raising such a furor in England, and while the Britishers, from the royal prince down to the meanest costermonger, are doing the Wild West show with vigor, there are a few here, writes a Leadville correspondent, who recall that other great cowboy ent, who recall that other great cowboy of the footlights as well as the foothills, and many a visit has been paid to one quaintly marked grave in the gravelly burying ground of this far-up city. The grave is that of Texas Jack.

He had many points in common with his fellow-showman from the plains. They both took seats in the local legislatures, and both tacked the pregy "Hon." to their common every-day legal names. They both were known the country over by their cowboy nicknames, and they

They both were known the country over by their cowboy nicknames, and they were the twin deities to the small boy with an Indian-killing weakness. In some respects the Hon. J. B. Omohundro was a better stage subject than the Hon. William Cody. He could orate, and filled out a border drama in fine style. He came east, and met Morlacchi, the famous dancer. It was a love match between the rough and ready dashing buck tween the rough and ready dashing buck rider and the Italian woman trained in the school of La Scala. She little dreamed she was to meet her fate when she came as the queen of the ballet to fill engagements in this country. The two loved, the gallant border swain and the warm-blooded, dark-eyed Italian sylph. They married and could not enjoy each other's society enough. It was while filling an engagement in this pneumonia city that Texas Jack went the way of a majority of the 3.300 who lie about him, and he succumbed to the dread lung

His grave slab would have suited his ideas to a dot. There is the carriage belt, with bowie-knife and guns; below, his Winchester. Then a portrait of his pony, Yeilow Chief, duly labelled, and finally a few words of the fanous man who rests so quietly below:

: Sacred to the Memory : Texas Jack
(J. B. Omontundro),
Died June 28, 1880,
39, Pheumonia.

Morlacchi respected his memory greatly, and showed her feelings by mak greatly, and showed her feelings by making a permanent retirement from the stage. Alive, Buffalo Bill is giving England a genuine sensation. Dead, his associate, Texas Jack, finds a grave in one of the historic cemeteries of the country, far skoward in the rich soil of his favorite Colorado.
